Lieutenant F. F. Kinslingbury.
PARTLY EATEN BY HIS COMRADES OF THE GREELY EXPEDITION.

The condition of the body of Lieutenant Frederick F. Kinslingbury, which was exhumed for examination, shows that all its most fleshy parts had been eaten away with sharp instruments, and there is no doubt that the miserable survivors of this young officer, all or some of them, ate the missing portions. Since the horrible discovery was made public, it has been admitted that six bodies of those members of the expedition who died while in the Arctic regions, were thus utilized.

Frederick F. Kinslingbury was an Englishman by birth, but came to America at an early age, and was reared at Rochester, N. Y. He enlisted in the Army of the United States, in 1863. In 1865 he was retired from active service, and was made paymaster's clerk at Detroit, Mich. By the influence of the late Zachariah Chandler, he was made a First Lieutenant in the Regular Army, in 1873.

His first station in this capacity was at Fort Concho, Tex., where he became acquainted with Lieutenant Greely. He was transferred to Fort Standing Rock, Dak., where he had charge of the scouts engaged in service against the Indians, in 1875. At the time of the Custer massacre he was with General Reno. Subsequently to that tragedy he captured the Indian who killed Custer in the fight.
In 1880, while his regiment was stationed at Fort Custer Kinslingbury's second wife died of mountain fever, immediately after his return from a scouting expedition. He had been made acquainted with her danger while 150 miles distant from the post at the head of a scouting party, and immediately left for the station. This Mrs. Kinslingbury, who had been his wife only six months, was the sister of his first wife, the mother of his four children.
The ages of his family, all boys and maintained by friendly people in different places, range from eight to seventeen years. Kinslingbury was offered a position in the Greely Expedition in 1881, and promptly accepted it. He was dead before the 22nd of June, 1881, when the survivors of the Greely Expedition were found.
His body was recovered, brought home and buried in Rochester, where it was examined and found in a mutilated condition. Poor Kinslingbury died at the early age of thirty-eight.
He was an able officer and a good comrade. Until the publication of the Greely Expedition it would be premature to say more than that he and Commander Greely are reported to have been on bad terms, and that his superior officer relieved him of duty at an early period of the time spent by the expedition at Fort Conger.

The Campaign Song.

(Bill Nye, in New York Mercury.)

Along with the blessings of freedom and the divine right of suffrage comes the incubus, the blot upon our glorious institutions, known as the campaign song. Dynamite under the throne is bad, but when the shattered monarch is gathered together in a royal gunny-sack and buried, peace once more reigns over the kingdom, but in a republic we know that every four years panics, plagues and pestilence will be overshadowed by the campaign song, set to the tune of John Brown's body, which is supposed to be marching on.

Four years ago I had the honor of inventing and hurling forth upon the nation a song which did much to deepen the horrors of the campaign.
It consisted of a song which was known everywhere as the adjustable campaign song, to be warbled to the tune of "Empty is the Cradle, Baby's Gone." It could be used both by the democrats and republicans equally well, and had a vacant space left in the chorus, where by means of a slot and adjustable thumb screws the names of either candidate can be inserted. This song was cast in solid plate, and hawked about the county along with the jailbird Wood-counts of the candidates, and did much damage where no precautions were taken against its ravages.

The campaign song of the present great war is not upon us. Let us be watchful and evade it if possible. I runs to the tune of "Mother is th-Battle Over," and two Dovers' powders go with each song.

To be perfectly candid, I am a little down on manufactured enthusiasm Hired bands, hired encore supes and convention boomers, receiving as much a day and board, do not strike my fancy, no matter by which party they may be hired. But the campaign song, jerked out of the grave or the garret every four years and new store teeth put in it fills me with a nameless gloom.

I call to mind a campaign song and a glee club with which, several years ago, we trained under a most deserving candidate on the other side.
He told the glee club that he couldn't afford to pay its expenses, and tried to get out of it that way, but the chairman of our central committee heard the club sing that campaign song, and he paid the expenses of the club out of our funds, while it traveled around through the country, leading the hordes of our enemies and leaving a trail of horror where-ever it went.

I would give you a stanza or two,
only I am friendly toward the whites at present and do not want to leave the reservation.

The trouble is that the campaign song does not bring out our best woodcut of the candidate. Campaign portraits are generally engraved on bass wood with a doublebarrel shot gun. It is an impromptu affair. Si-is the campaign song, Sidney Lanier and Baron Tennyson do not write campaign songs. Neither does the Sweet Singer of Michigan. Only the high board four-foot everwires campaign songs that are sung to the tune of John Brown's remains lie mouldering in the grave, while his soul is in the act of marching on. Very few writers of campaign songs ever die a natural death. They generally die mysteriously and suddenly with some other man's boots on.

other column and remember you can

Loved by Ladies.

Ladies love delicate and delicious perfumes. In Parker's Hair Balsam they not only satisfy this taste, but have an article which arrests falling hair, removes dandruff, restores the original color and imparts a beautiful gloss, softness and life. Does not soil the linen, is not a dye, clean and economical. n641m

POLITICAL POINTS.

Suppose each fellow who went on the Greely expedition had taken his girl along. He would literally have eaten her up.—Louisville Post.

Hon. J. A. McKenize deserves the thanks of all age-smitten sufferers.
Before he secured the removal of the tax on quinine the price was $3.50 per ounce. It has since fallen as low as $1.02, even in mid-summer when the demand must be heavy.—Louisville Post.

A Blaine witness has been found who believes that Millersburg is the county seat of Bourbon county. He is the same son of a gun who says he saw Blaine married to Miss Stanhope in a parlor in Millersburg, which is more than Blaine himself can or will claim.—Louisville Post.

Dr. Samuel Hodge's Sarsaparilla and potash is a sure cure for rheumatism, scrofula, scald head or tetter, chronic sores of all kind or any disease arising from impurity of the blood. You can get a trial bottle at J. B. Armstrong's, G. E. Gaither's or Gish & Garner's.

Col. Frederick E. Goodrich's admirable "Life of Grover Cleveland" is now ready; it is handsomely bound and printed, and contains upwards of 500 pages; it is illustrated by first-class artists; it is from the press of Messrs. H. Hallett & Co., of Portland Maine. As a rapid biographer, Col.
Goodrich doubtless stands without a rival in America, and the volume has the impress of the broadest information and most careful attention on every page. This is the biography that received the inestimable benefit of the active co-operation and assistance of Mr. Cleveland, his relatives and friends; this is the volume that is recommended by the friends and private Secretary of the distinguished candidate; it is a true picture drawn by a master hand, of the life of the Statesman from the humble cradle to the present day, and presents striking contrast to the score of so-called "lives" which are to a large extent filled with irrelevant matter made up from the newspapers of the day; those who are wise will subscribe only for the authentic Portland edition—the largest, cheapest, handsomest and best. The steel-plate portraits of Cleveland and Hendricks were engraved for the volume and are a standing rebuke to the caricatures which appear in the so-called "lives" with big pretensions.

We understand that this Authentic Standard edition is outselling all others, more than ten to one, and that its agents are meeting with the most phenomenal success. A few more agents are wanted by the publishers.
The most liberal terms are offered. It is a splendid chance for beginners, as with this grand book no one can fail to do a great business. The volume also contains a biography of Thomas A. Hendricks.

MACEDONIA, KY.

We had quite a refreshing shower of rain Friday, which was badly needed.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moreland, of Lyon county, are circulating among old acquaintances in this part of the woods.

Master Grover Cleveland Parish, a nine pound son of our friend T. S.
Parish, put in his appearance as an all wool democrat last week, and signifies his intention to stick to the ticket as long as there is a pea in the dish.

Mr. M. A. Guthrie says new babies are no object in his neighborhood, he says they are thicker than black bugs in split bacon hams.

Our farmers report corn very sorry, about a half crop, while tobacco in this locality is better than it was last year, and democrats on the increase.

While counting a basket of eggs a few days ago, I discovered an egg with a knot resembling a bubble on the big end; upon examination I found in the big end of the egg a well formed chicken surrounded by a strif-fen, the egg being nice and fresh.
Mrs. W. A. White, of this place, broke another egg in which she found another egg about the size of the egg of a sparrow; the small egg is now on exhibition at this office.

It becomes our painful duty to record the death of Mrs. Susan Hawkins, wife of our old friend Henry Hawkins, of the vicinity of Wool's Chapel. She died on the night of the 20th inst., at about seventy years of age. She was a consistent member of the Methodist church, and was a zealous christian, kind and obliging as a neighbor, an affectionate mother and a devoted wife.

Since writing the above we are informed of a destructive hail-storm that passed two or three miles south of this place, on last Friday, doing a great deal of damage to tobacco in some places.

To be sure, you've "only got a cold," only a cough. "Be all over it in a few days." "Don't worry about me." Well, we won't. But 50,000 people die every year in the United States from consumption. And every soul of them began that way. Better stop it now with Parker's Tonic.

OAK GROVE.

August 23d, 1881.

ED. SOUTH KENTUCKIAN:

It has been said, and truly, that the whirligig of time in its various revolutions brings about many change, not only of persons, hopes and aspirations, but of locations. Your correspondent can scarcely tell how it happened, but the last whirl surely landed her in this neighborhood, where she will doubtless remain for some time to come, unless some unforeseen circumstances are brought to bear that will bring about another revolution. Confidentially, away upon the top of Lookout Mountain this summer, the spirit whispered mysteriously of the many changes that the next six or eight months were to unfold. However, she will not anticipate, but patiently await a materialization. So much by way of digression, and now for the few items to be chronicled from this locality.

On last Sunday morning the pulpit of Salem Church was occupied by the regular minister, Rev. Mr. Forgy, an able speaker, who not only edited but entertained his audience with a good discourse, replete with argument and sound doctrine. The theme of his discourse, "Christ, the friend of all who come to Him." He showed most clearly who are His friends and who were not, and closed his remarks with an eloquent and pathetic plea for the Master, who is the friend of all who will come unto Him.
A great deal of talk is heard, speculative and otherwise, in regard to the new railroad, which continues to "drag its slow lengths along" toward completion, which is hoped will be at a nearer day than predicted by many.

It is also rumored that there is to be soon established a daily mail on the Oak Grove route, another consumption most devoutly to be desired.

The farmers who have delivered their wheat seem dissatisfied with the result, and feeling that the prices received were too low, many are still holding their wheat waiting for better offers; however all they may have lost on wheat will doubtless be made up on pork if the present quotations from the market are reliable.

Tobacco is said to be unusually fine, and promises much.

The latest social event in the neighborhood was the lawn party, given by Mr. James Parish on last Friday evening. Mrs. Jas. McKenzie and Mrs. Ragdale charmingly assisted the hosts in receiving and entertaining his guests. The evening was pronounced by all in attendance a most enjoyable one, and the entertainment recherche in every particular.

Misses Fannie and Susie Barker are gladdening friends in Clarksville with the sunshine of their pre-ence.
Miss Rebecca Ryan, of Franklin, Ky., a cultivated and intelligent young lady, who has many friends in this vicinity, is visiting the family of Dr.
Jos. Thomas.

In conclusion, Olive Branch regrets a dearth of items of interest from this neighborhood, or rather being unable to glean more at present. She, however, begs leave to return many thanks to friends in and around Church Hill, for recent kindnesses and courtesies shown her, especially, Mr. and Mrs. John Ford, Mrs. Wm. Adeock, and others of which and for whom she will ever cherish kind recollections.

OLIVE BRANCH.

Don't forget to renew your subscription when it is out, and remember that the SEMI-WEEKLY KENTUCK-IAN gives you more news for less money than any paper you can get.

The Kentucky Editors.

The visit of the Kentucky editors of the Southern Exposition this week should not pass unnoted by the business men of Louisville. From a commercial standpoint there is a bundant reason why closer relations should exist between this city and the remainder of the State. This will not be until the people in the city who are prepared to do business with the surrounding towns make more definite overtures to them, especially as a very large part of Kentucky is now being systematically invaded by representatives of outside cities with a view to curtailing Louisville's trade. No more important class, everything considered, than the editors of the State can be brought here.

The average country weekly newspaper may not be an important looking affair and may possess little interest to the city reader. But it must be considered that there are more than a hundred of these journals in Kentucky, every one of which is quite as important to the town in which it is printed as are the city dailies in their respective circles.
There is scarcely one of these sheets not more essentially a newspaper than were the Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis journals within the memory of some of our readers. Their editors have the respect of the communities which give them support, and what these editors write does much to form the sentiment of the reading classes. Hence the importance of having the editors properly informed in regard to the business advantages of the leading city of the State and favorably inclined in regard to our people. It might be supposed that the patronage of the State would naturally be attracted to its largest city, but there happen to be other cities, just beyond the State's borders, whose merchants are seeking to profit from competition with our own metropolis. Louisville need have no fears from such competition if her people will put forward proper efforts, one of which should be to take the trouble to point out to the visiting editors the character of the business of the city.

We do not mean that the extension of a little civility to any editor will necessarily purchase his good opinion.
Nor do we want any editor to feel under obligation to devote his feelings to Louisville's interests after going home. Many gentlemen of this class visit Louisville only occasionally, and so hurriedly as to have little opportunity to judge of the business advantages here. We simply desire that their coming in a body this week shall be made an occasion, on the part of merchants and manufacturers, for giving them the fullest possible exposition of Louisville as a business center. Hence we suggest to the Board of Trade that some action in regard to meeting the visiting journalists would be proper, and might be mutually profitable, as well as pleasant to all parties.—Commercial.

Up to the hour of going to press no daily paper had been started in Bowling Green this week.

Hon. A. J. Caldwell was re-nominated for Congress last week by the Democrats of the Clarksville, Tennessee, District.

Capt. W. J. Stone was nominated for Congress in the First District by the Democratic primary election Saturday.

Congressman Thad. C. Pound, the most prominent Republican in Wisconsin, has come out in a letter renouncing Blaine and declaring for Cleveland.

The sled which it is alleged that Lieut. Lockwood, of the Greely expedition, dragged to within 400 miles of the North Pole, is on exhibition at the Louisville Exposition.

The Bowling Green Daily Times has been enlarged to an eight column sheet and is now the largest daily paper in the State outside of Louisville. We are glad to see this evidence of its prosperity.

A sleeping car was burned in Colorado Friday, and John Kelly, of New York, was among the lost. Unfortunately for the Democratic party it was not the Tammany chief.

Chas. E. Kincaid, Gov. Knott's private Secretary, will start for Italy this week to bring back the remains of Joel T. Hart, the sculptor. The last Legislature provided for their removal.

The great mass meeting of Irish-Americans in New York city last week to endorse Cleveland and Hendricks was one of the largest and most enthusiastic political gatherings ever witnessed in the State. Some of the ablest Irishmen in the country addressed the meeting and strong resolutions were adopted.

Gov. Bate and his Republican opponent, Col. Reid, have opened the gubernatorial canvass in Tennessee, and are meeting in joint debate on the raging stump. Of course Bate will be re-elected.

Rufus H. Johnson, sheriff of Hickman county, while assisting his workmen to put up the framework of a barn, fell a distance of fourteen feet and was killed, last week. The county court appointed T. B. Johnson to fill out the unexpired term of his brother as sheriff.

A few years ago, during a heated campaign, Mr. Blaine brought a libel suit against the editor of the Portland, (Me.) paper, upon the same grounds that he has sued the Indianapolis Sentinel, and it was dismissed as soon as the election was over. The present suit has been brought in a court that will not meet till after the November election, and it is safe to say that the case will never come to trial.

A sleeping car filled with the workmen of Miles Orten's Circus was burned near Groely, Col., Friday, in some mysterious way. The train was stopped, but only a few of the miserable wretches were rescued, and even these were maimed and crippled in being pulled from the windows. Ten were burned to death and seven others badly hurt. It is believed that the fire was caused by the explosion of a barrel of gasoline which caught from the lamp. Another barrel exploded during the fire and the gas suffocated the burning victims before they could be rescued.

Mr. Dan E. O'Sullivan, who has for two years been managing editor of the Courier-Journal, has tendered his resignation to take effect in a few weeks. He will go to New York to take a position on one of the leading dailies. He is a young man whose rise in his profession is unparalleled in the history of journalism in Kentucky. Yet in the twenties, he has risen step by step from local editor of a Bowling Green weekly to managing editor of the leading daily of the South. He has filled every position assigned him ably and faithfully, and in parting with him the Courier-Journal will lose one of the most capable and efficient members of its staff. Our best wishes attend him wherever his lot may be cast.

DOWN TO DEATH.

A Storm Strikes the Transfer Belmont, Near Henderson, Ky., and Sinks Her with a Cargo of Human Freight.

Fourteen Lives Known to be Lost and Probably More Will be Found in the Wreck.

Cuddy Roach and Son Among the Drowned.

RECOVERING THE BODIES.

At 8 o'clock Friday morning the Nashville train was run on to the barge transfer at Evansville, and started on the fifteen miles trip down the Ohio river to Henderson, Ky. The barge was broad and long, and had on it a baggage and two passenger cars and three heavily laden freight cars, under the control of Conductor C. L. Wood, of the Louisville and Nashville road. The barge was drawn by the tug Belmont, Captained by Mr. Jno. H. Smith of Evansville, and was closely connected with the towed barge by huge ropes. When Evansville was left the sky was blue, the air cool and bracing, but by 9 o'clock a dark cloud appeared to the northeast, and in a few moments a fearful storm had come up and the waves mounted high up against the tug. The passengers pale in the sight of the awful danger, began to leave the boat and go on the cars on the barge, but a number remained, thinking one place as safe as another. Finally a mighty billow struck the Belmont amidships, and it broke loose and was wheeled over into the angry waves.

A few agonized screams, a few forms struggling beneath the resistless hand of death as the waters closed above them, the crash of the smoke stack as it snuffed from the boat, and the tug lay bottom upward in the midst of the seething billows. Capt. Jno. H. Smith and thirteen others had sunk to rise no more.

The barge was held down by heavy freight cars on the windward side and slowly drifted to the Kentucky shore and anchored on a sand-bar. A newsboy went ashore, procured a horse and carried the news to Henderson.

WHEN THE BOAT WENT DOWN, All on board, excepting five souls, were lost. One man, a drummer, as it went down threw off his coat, leaped into the river and swam to the Indiana shore. The pilot, the fireman and two drummers climbed upon the wreck and were rescued when the relief boat arrived. The following is a LIST OF THE DROWNED.

Capt. Jno. H. Smith, Evansville.
Mrs. Matt S. Lyon, Evansville.
Mrs. Sallie Bryan,
Miss Laura Lyon, her daughters.
E. C. Roach and little son, Keen, Evansville.

Mr. J. G. Murray and baby, Brookville, Ala.
Mrs. Woodville, of Henderson, Ky.
Mrs. Hamilton, colored and two colored girls about 12 years old.

These, twelve in all, are known to have been lost, and it is believed several more went down with the wreck. None of the crew, except Capt. Smith, was drowned.

RESCUING THE BODIES.
Up to yesterday the following bodies had been recovered:

Mrs. Lyon and her daughters, Miss Lyon, and Mrs. Bryan. The latter was the wife of Mr. John Bryan, Jr., formerly of this city.

Mrs. Addie Murray and child. Her husband arrived and recognized the body of his wife Saturday. He stated that Mrs. Murray's niece, 19 years old, was with her and must be lost.

Capt. Smith, captain of the Belmont.

Mr. E. C. Roach and his little son were brought up Sunday.

The bottom of the capsized boat was blown out, and Hiram Hill, the celebrated diver, was sent for.

A man named Hay, who expected to meet his wife at Henderson, believes she was lost, as she had left Owensboro the day before.

The four survivors were Sam'l Butler and J. R. Mitchell, Evansville drummers; H. W. Reddin, engineer and J. W. Kay, pilot. The man who swam ashore was a Cincinnati drummer, name not learned.

THE LATEST.
The search for the bodies continued Sunday, and the following were found:

Miss Mattie Murray, Mr. J. G. Murray's niece.

Lucy Fletcher, colored girl.

Mrs. W. H. Hay, the young woman supposed to have been lost.

The bodies of Miss Murray and Mr. Roach were badly disfigured. All of these were recovered by Hill, the diver.

The bodies of Mrs. Woodville, Mrs. Hamilton, col., and her grand-daughter, Alice Bell, had not been found up to yesterday.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS.
The sinking occurred in water 17 feet deep.

The Belmont cost $20,000 and was insured for $15,000.

Mrs. Murray was found with her babe still clasped in her arms.

Capt. Smith was a well-known river man and very popular in Evansville. He staid at his post to the last and went down with the boat while all the crew escaped.

Mr. Roach had started to go on to the barge leading his little boy, and father and son went down hand in hand.

The brave drummer who swam ashore accomplished a feat almost miraculous, as the waves were rolling very high and a storm raging.

The storm that sank the boat did fearful damage to Evansville and surrounding country. Much property was destroyed or damaged.

The remains of Mr. E. C. Roach and son will arrive here to-day and be buried in this city. Dr. T. G. Keen, his father-in-law, was in Virginia, and could not arrive until yesterday. The funerals will be preached in Evansville this morning.

Capt. Durland, one of the owners of the boat says he had a presentiment that something had happened and started down the river from Evansville as soon as the storm was over and found the wreck. The telegraph wires were down and the news did not reach Evansville till 2 o'clock, p. m.

J. S. Hackley, a New York drummer said he repeatedly tried to make the captain take the boat ashore, to all of which requests Captain Smith paid no attention. He compelled all the people to stay on against the wishes of many of them. A majority of the passengers on the train severely censure the Captain as the other transfer tug going the other way went to the shore when the cyclone struck them, so no one was hurt.

Charlie Wood, conductor of the passenger train on the barge, acted like a hero and displayed great bravery and self-possession. He went through the car speaking words of courage and comfort to the terror-stricken passengers, while death hung over them and their friends were being buried in a watery grave. His bravery was highly commended by, all after the danger was over.

J. L. Burgess, of Hill County, Tex., who with his wife and two children was on the Belmont, had a miraculous escape. They were on the boat when the storm began. Mr. Burgess said there were two storms, only one of which was severe. The second turned the boat around, and getting his family together he hurried to the bow, where it was lashed to the barge. All the passengers were running about wildly, when suddenly the steamer careened. He pushed his wife upon the barge and taking a child under each arm almost fell over upon it himself. A moment later the Belmont capsized and went down.

Entertaining the Editors.

Thursday, August 28, was "Press Day" at the Exposition, and all of the editors in Kentucky were invited to be present as the guests of the management. Free transportation and free entertainment was provided for the quill drivers, and each one was supplied with a badge that passed him over all street-car lines and admitted him to every part of the Exposition. Col. Young, the President, left actually nothing undone to make the affair one long to be remembered.

Over one hundred editors from all parts of the State attended. At 12 o'clock Col. Young delivered a cordial address of welcome in the Music Hall of the Exposition building and Col. Polk Johnson followed with greetings on behalf of the Louisville press. Col. Stoddard Johnson, President of the K. P. A., responded in an appropriate speech, after which the party was invited to the Pavilion Restaurant inside the Exposition grounds and a magnificent banquet served. The dinner over, the following toasts were proposed by Mr. W. M. Finley, of the Louisville Post, that duty having been assigned him, viz:

"Col. E. H. Young," response by Dan O'Sullivan.
"The State of Kentucky," response by C. T. Allen.
"The U. S. Army and Navy," response by Maj. Jos. Kennerly.
"Headlines," response by F. L. McChesney.
"The German Press," response by Henry S. Cobb.
"The Bluegrass Region," response by Jno. A. Bell.
"The Ladies of Kentucky," response by Jno. G. Craddock.

"The Penitentiary District," response by Wallace Grunelle.
"Eastern Kentucky and its Future," response by D. K. Weis.
"The Athens of the West," response by H. T. Duncan.

"The Editor-at-Large," response by A. J. Morry.
"Southern Kentucky," response by E. L. Stirling.
"The Cincinnati Exposition," response by Geo. M. Dittos.

Some Privileges of an Interviewer," response by Jos. Eddins.
"The Press of Louisville," response by Hawthorne Hill.

After the speech-making the formal entertainment was concluded and the editors proceeded to take in the sights. The intended display of fireworks at night was prevented by a terrific storm which was the only disappointment in connection with the entire affair. Space will not permit us to speak of the Exposition in this article, suffice it to say that it is in the hands of men who will not let it stop short of a grand success. Col. Bennett H. Young placed the visitors under life-long obligations for his royal treatment and princely hospitality.

The Congressional Race.

Should there be a dead lock in the Congressional Convention in the second district, between Clay and Lafolton, we predict a raise of the old "McKenzie yell," and then watch the boys look to him. They are solid for him all over the district.—Muhlenberg Echo.

Two of the Henderson papers openly opposed Mr. Clay last week and the other two said not a word in his favor, although issued just on the eve of the county conventions in nearly all of the counties. It seems that Mr. Clay lacks a good deal of being popular in his own county—but some men are least esteemed where they are best known.

KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Business Meeting Held in Louisville Aug 28, 1884.

[Courier-Journal Aug. 29.]

The Kentucky Press Association held a meeting last night in the rooms of the Louisville Press Club for the purpose of organizing. A very full list of the members were present. Col. Stoddard Johnston, of the Frankfort Yeoman, called the meeting to order, and Mr. Urey Woodson, of the Owensboro Messenger, was chosen Secretary. Col. E. L. Starling, of the Henderson Journal, moved that a committee of three be appointed to draft a resolution expressing the sense of the meeting as to what the annual dues of members should be.

Messrs. E. Polk Johnson and E. G. Logan, of the Times, and Bruce Champ, of the Bourbon News, the committee, reported in favor of the appointment of a committee of three to present an amended constitution and by-laws governing this subject at the next meeting.

The motion was adopted, and the Chair appointed E. Polk Johnson, J. W. Hopper and C. T. Allen.

Mr. J. W. Hopper, of the Lebanon Standard and Times, nominated Col. J. Stoddard Johnston for President. He was unanimously re-elected, and Mr. J. W. Hopper was selected Vice President. Mr. Urey Woodson, of the Owensboro Messenger, was chosen Secretary, and Mr. Hawthorne Hill was elected Treasurer. Col. Allen, of the Princeton Banner, was elected orator.

Col. E. Polk Johnston nominated Wallace Gruelle, of the Breckinridge News, "one of the silent workers of the press," for Poet, and he was unanimously elected.

Col. Johnson, J. P. Barrett, C. M. Meacham, J. P. Murray, F. L. McChesney and R. S. Evans were then appointed as an Executive Committee, and the time and place for the next meeting was left with them. President Johnston was made Chairman of the committee.

Mr. Wallace Gruelle was then called on to say something about the "Pennyroyal Deedict." He made a neat speech in glowing terms of the girls of the "deedict" and the herb, the staple product of the country.

Col. J. Stoddard Johnston spoke of the feasibility of making an excursion to Mexico. He felt assured that he could take the press as far as El Paso, Texas, returning by way of New Orleans and take in the World's Exposition. He had seen a number of railroad men, and they had extended all the courtesies in their power. The expenses of the trip would be small, not exceeding $2 a day, with no cost for transportation. The meeting then adjourned.

Congressional.

It is reported that Laffoon has carried Webster and Union counties. This will tie Clay, giving the latter all the other doubtful counties. No news has been received from McLean or Hancock, and it may be that Laffoon has carried one or both of those counties.

Of course there is not a word of truth in the report that Polk Laffoon has sent large sums of money in the doubtful counties to be used in canvassing his cause.—Dawson Ripples.

ASLEEP.

BY ROSE THURGOOD.

In summer-time how fair it showed—
My garden by the village road,
Where daisies of blossom glowed,
And roses softly bloomed;
With sunny glances and radiant white,
Pale heliopsis, the sun's delight,
And colors that perfumed the night
Where the south wind rushed.

There solemn purple pansies stood,
Gay tulips red with frost and wood,
And wild things fresh from field and wood,
And things with dainty grace,
Deep blue and white of columbines,
The darkly-mystic passion vine,
And clematis that loves to twine,
Bedecked that happy place.

And the strong, undimmed day
Of long and fervent summer days
Their colors made the passing gaze,
And large and every eye.

Their cups of radiant glow Carried all the bees that ever flew,
And butterflies of radiant hue, Painted as they floated by.

Now falls a cloud of sailing snow,
The winter winds of winter blow,
No blossoms darts its cup to show—
Earth folds them in her breast;
A shroud of white, a virgin gleam,
A slowly, softly falling rain,
In vain shall any sweet wind
To break their quiet dream.

My garden is a vanished dream,
Dead in the waning moon of dead,
Dear life as above it gleams;
And yet I know not how to sleep,
My flowers will bear the dropping rain
When spring renews life and plants,
And then it shall be mine again;
It is God's garden now.

DIFFICULTIES OF A WITNESS.

"You must get around early in the morning, my dear," said Mr. Spoonendyke, "because I'm going to be a witness in court."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Spoonendyke, "what have you been doing?"

"What d'ye s'pose I've been doing? I've heard some things in a law case, and I've got to swear to them. You can't have a law case without witnesses, and I've got to be one to-morrow; so you hustle out in the morning and get my breakfast."

"They can't do anything to you, can they?" inquired Mrs. Spoonendyke, nervously.

"If I ain't there in time they can send me to jail," responded Mr. Spoonendyke, ominously; "and you'd better get me ready in time if you don't want to lose me," and Mr. Spoonendyke hopped into bed and went to sleep.

Mrs. Spoonendyke turned the clock ahead two hours, arranged her hair, and set down to speculate on the chances of waking at the proper moment. At first she concluded to stay up all night, but she began to get sleepy, and, reflecting that if she fixed her mind on the hour she wanted to rise she'd be sure to wake up, she went to bed and to sleep simultaneously.

At half-past 4 she roused up with a terrified start.

"Wake up, my dear," she exclaimed to her husband. "You've got to go to a witnessing in a case this morning. Hurry up, or they'll put you in jail."

"What?" responded Mr. Spoonendyke. "What did the head get mixed there with—pooh—ah!" and Mr. Spoonendyke was sound asleep again.

"You must get right up and go to court," said Mrs. Spoonendyke firmly. "You know something about a law court and you must wake up right off."

"What's the matter?" propounded Mr. Spoonendyke, sitting up and glaring around him. "What day of the month is this? Who called Spoonendyke? I ain't slept a wink," and Mr. Spoonendyke fell back on his pillow.

"You know you must go to the case," continued Mrs. Spoonendyke. "You've been appointed a witness and you must go and swear about it. Wake up, or they will arrest you."

"What case?" demanded Mr. Spoonendyke. "Who's arrested? Can't you let a man alone just as he's getting in a dose? What's the matter with you, anyway?"

"You wanted to get up early about some court. Come, get up, now, or they'll send you to jail," and Mrs. Spoonendyke got up and lighted the gas and began dropping on her skirts.

"Who's going to court?" asked Mr. Spoonendyke, sitting up in the bed.

"Where's the court? Think any court wants me at 5 o'clock in the morning?"

"It's about a law case," said Mrs. Spoonendyke, cheerfully. "You know you are a witness. To think that I should live to be the wife of a witness!"

And Mrs. Spoonendyke, firmly impressed that it was something in the nature of a foreign mission, gazed admiringly upon her husband.

"Did you see the law case?" howled Mr. Spoonendyke, now thoroughly mad.

"D'ye think a law case goes proving around all night like a policeman? Got an idea that a Judge is going to strap the Court House on his back and fetch it up here at daylight to try a law case?"

"But you said you wanted to get up early," reasoned Mrs. Spoonendyke, "and it's pretty early now."

"D'ye s'pose I wanted to get up at midnight to practice?" propounded Mr. Spoonendyke. "Think a law case is like a church-society, the first man there gets the best supper? P'raps you were afraid if I didn't start early I wouldn't get a seat. The measly court don't meet till 10 o'clock, do they?"

"And here you wake me up at 4! What d'ye suppose a witness is, anyhow?" shouted Mr. Spoonendyke, getting madder and madder. "Think he's a dark lantern, and goes around with his slide turned and the smoke coming out of the top? D'ye know what a court is?"

"Why, yes," said Mrs. Spoonendyke, "a court is a place where they hang people, Mrs. Meterhof—"

"That's it! You struck it first clip," spluttered Mr. Spoonendyke. "With that information, all you want is a plug hat and an adjournment to be a lawyer. If I had your intelligence and a tail head, I'd hire out for Judge at board wages. I tell ye a court is a place where they try cases about land, and licking people, and contracts, and—divorce cases. Yes, indeed," continued Mr. Spoonendyke, solemnly, "they try divorce cases about women waking their husbands up in the dead of night."

"What kind of a law case are you going to witness?" inquired Mrs. Spoonendyke.

"A daylight case! You understand that? At 10 o'clock, and not 5. Got that through your head? Think you can remember 10 o'clock? If you can't can you remember 11, or noon?"

"Do they have cases every hour?" queried Mrs. Spoonendyke.

"Of course they do. They leave every fifteen minutes, like a ferryboat, and if I can't catch one case I'll be witness in another. Got it now? Only they don't run as often from midnight to 6. Begin to see it?"

"I think I do," said Mrs. Spoonendyke, ruminating. "I was thinking that if one started at 3 o'clock, I'd go and witness with you."

"Oh, you'd make a witness!" proclaimed Mr. Spoonendyke. "With your capacity for observing and ability to recollect, you would only want to appear twice to absorb the whole witness business," and, with this reflection, Mr. Spoonendyke went back to his slumbers.

At 10 o'clock sharp his wife called him and notified him of the hour.

"How'm I going to get there in time? Why didn't you call me before? Want me sent to State prison for contempt?"

"Want to get rid of me, don't you?" and Mr. Spoonendyke darted into his clothes.

"Don't you want some breakfast, my dear?" inquired Mrs. Spoonendyke, tenderly.

"No, I don't want any messy breakfast," he shouted. "Didn't I tell ye I was a witness at 10, and now it's half past. Think a man is appointed witness during good behavior? S'pose I hold the office till my successor is appointed?"

And Mr. Spoonendyke plunged down stairs and out of the house.

"To-day did what he told me," sighed Mrs. Spoonendyke, wetting a piece of court-plaster and patching up a hole in her silk dress. "Though I don't see any use of a man being a witness if he can't be a witness when he wants to. If I were a man," she continued, as she dozed down on the floor to change her boots, "I'd get appointed by the President, and then I could attend to business or not, as I liked," with which sage reflection Mrs. Spoonendyke pulled out her husband's socks and began to sew them three inches in diameter on the heels.

HOW INDIANS RETURN CALLS.

A party of Sioux Indians were guests at a leading Milwaukee hotel, says Peck's Sun, and the ladies had a great deal of amusement with them, studying their customs. That is, they all did except one lady. The ladies called upon the Indians and the savages returned the calls almost before the ladies got to their rooms. One lady called on a chief, and then went to her room and retired, and pretty soon there was a knock at her door, and she found that it was the chief. She told him to come in the morning. The lady unlocks her door in the morning so the porter can come in and build a fire before she gets up. She heard a knock in the morning, and supposing it was the porter, she said, "Come in." The door opened and in walked Mr. Indian. She took one look at him and pulled the bed clothes over her head. He sat down on the side of the bed and said "How!" Well, she was so scared that she didn't know "How" from Adam. She said to him in the best Sioux that she could command, "Please, good Mr. Indian, go away, until I get up," but he didn't seem to be in a hurry. He picked up pieces of her wearing apparel from the floor, different articles that he didn't seem to know anything about where they were worn, and made comments on them in the Sioux tongue. The stockings, as seemed to paralyze his untutored mind the most. They were these long, 90 degrees in the shade stockings, and they were too much for his feeble intellect. He held them up by the toes and said "Ugh!" The lady trembled and wished he would go away. He seemed to take great delight in examining the hair on the bureau, and looked at the lady as much as to say, "Poor girl, some hostile tribe has made war on the pale face and taken many scalps." He critically examined all the crockery, the wash bowl and pitcher, but he was struck the worst at a corset that he found on a chair. He tried to put it on himself, and was so handsy about it that it occurred to the lady that he was not so fresh a delegate as she seemed to be. Finally she happened to think of the bell, and she rung it as though the house was on fire, and pretty soon the porter came and invited the Indian to go down stairs and take a drink. The lady looked that door too quick, and she will never leave it open again when there are Indians in town. She says her hair, on the bureau, fairly turned gray from fright.

TOILET RECIPES.

To Remove Pimples.—Two ounces of bi-carbonate of soda, one drachm of glycerine, one ounce of spermaceti ointment.

FACE WASH.—Two grains of bi-chloride of mercury, two grains of muriate of ammonia, eight ounces of emulsion of almonds.

CARE OF THE NAILS.—Brush them carefully at least once a day, according to one's work, pushing back the flesh from the nail, thus avoiding hang-nails. Under no circumstances bite them, but trim with either scissors or penknife. Do not cut the nails shorter than the fingers, or both will soon have a stubby appearance; and clean them with a blunt, not sharp, point.

PURIFYING THE BREATH.—Poor breath is usually caused by an unhealthy state of the stomach or poor teeth. If caused by the first, the physician should be called upon; if the latter, apply to the dentist. If from neither, take chlorate of lime, seven drachms; gum arabic, five drachms; to be mixed with warm water to a stiff paste, rolled out into lozenges. These will arrest decay in the teeth and neutralize acidity of the stomach, and will also remove all traces of tobacco from the breath.

CARE OF THE TEETH.—They should be brushed carefully after each meal, and particularly after supper just before going to bed, as what particles as may be left on the teeth after eating very soon destroy them. Brushing the teeth once a day with pure white castile soap will keep them clean and white. If you cannot remove the tartar that may accumulate by the use of a brush, take powdered pumice stone, and with a small stick made into a fine brush at the end, rub the teeth carefully with the pumice stone. Once a month will do for this, because, if practiced too often, it is apt to destroy the enamel.

RESTORING THE COLOR OF THE HAIR.—When the hair loses color, it may be restored by bathing the head in a weak solution of ammonia—an even teaspoonful of carbonate of ammonia to a quart of water—washing the head with a crash mitten and brushing the hair thoroughly while wet. Bathing the head in a strong solution of rock salt is said to restore gray hair in some cases. Pour boiling water on rock salt in the proportion of two heaping table-spoonfuls to a quart of water and let it stand before using. Ammonia, if used too often, makes the hair lighter, and, if in a strong solution, burns and splits the hair.

WOMANLY MODESTY.

Man loves the mysterious. A cloudless sky and the full-blown rose leave him unmoved; but the violet which hides its blushing beauties behind the bush, and the moon when emerging from behind a cloud, are to him sources of inspiration and of pleasure. Modesty is to merit what shade is to a figure in painting—it gives boldness and prominence. Nothing adds more to female beauty than modesty. It sheds around the countenance a halo of light that is borrowed from virtue. Botanists have given the rose hue which tinges the cup of the white rose the name of "maiden blush." This pure and delicate hue is the only paint Christian virtue should use. It is the richest ornament. A woman without modesty is like a faded flower diffusing an unwholesome odor, which the prudent gardener will throw from him. Her destiny is melancholy, for it terminates in shame and repentance. Beauty passes like the flowers, which bloom and die in a few hours; but modesty gives the female charms which supply the place of transitory freshness of youth.

A LEADING oculist of Boston is reported as saying that he has more patients from the Law School at Cambridge than from any other source. It must not be supposed from this that the young men injure their eyes by excessive application. The bad ventilation and gas-heated air of the lecture rooms cause the trouble.

CHAPLAIN ALLEN, of the Maine Legislature, prayed as follows while a total abstinence measure was under consideration: "O Lord, we thank Thee that hardly a dog, so to speak, is against the onward march of this glorious cause."

A PIECE of beef is much more tender and juicy when the animal has been fed on roots than beef made where no roots have been fed.

A MAN has no right to occupy such high moral grounds that he is constantly so far above his fellows that he can be of no earthly assistance to them.

MEN will never know us by our faith, for that is within us; but they know us by our works, which are visible to them.

CATTLE hoofs are now $50 per ton for making horn buttons.

"IDENTITY IS THE SOUL OF WIT."

The following amusing story, which was told by Franklin, ought to be read and acted upon by all correspondents communicating their thoughts to the newspaper press. A young man, on commencing business, proposed to paint over his shop window, "John Thompson, hatter, makes and sells hats for ready money," to which was added the sign of a hat. One friend suggested, as he made and sold hats, that word "hatter" was unnecessary. It was therefore struck out and the sign remained, "John Thompson makes and sells hats for ready money." Another friend advised him to omit the phrase "for ready money," as there would occur occasions for selling on credit; and so the sign read: "John Thompson makes and sells hats." It was then hinted that the buyer of the hat did not care who made it, and that the sign would be better if it read: "John Thompson sells hats." But another amendment was in store still, for a critic pointed out the uselessness of the phrase "sells hats," for, said he, "no one would ever suppose that the hats were to be given away for nothing." Thus, at last, this aspiring tradesman commenced business, like many worthy successors, under the modest sign of "John Thompson."

HISTORICAL ANIMALS.

Montaigne has written in praise of his cat. Cowper has left a most circumstantial account of his heres-Puss, Bess and Tiney. The ancient hebrews were great lovers of animals, and the fawn of St. Giles and the robin that built in the head of St. Karilef have been remembered in their legends. Even practical Benjamin Franklin did not disdain to write an epitaph for the pet squirrel of his friend, Miss Shipley, remarking: "Few squirrels were better accomplished, for he had received a good education, traveled far and seen much of the world, and as he had the honor of being, for his virtues, your favorite, he shall not go, like a vulgar scullion, to his grave without an epitaph." Less interesting creatures than squirrels have been sung about by poets; the aspidochelone appeared upon the fair neck of a mile, Des Roches at a court festival formed the subject of several effusions from his admirers. "Philip Sparrow," so touchingly bewailed by the muse in Skelton's poem, may have been an imaginary bird, and poor "Vertvert," the parrot who met an untimely fate in consequence of the terrible language he had learned in his travels from one convent to another, might also be but a creation of fancy. But the favorite dog of Cornelius Agrippa was an actual reality, and Virius, the philosopher's servant, was so hurt at the unjust aspersions cast on this worthy animal by superstitious folk who believed him to be a demon that he earnestly protested against this mistaken idea. "He was a real, natural dog, I have often led him about by a string, and called him by his French name, Monsieur. I wonder authors can write so absurdly about his vanishing after his master's death."

Monsieur was more fortunate than a poor horse who was burned with its master by the Inquisition because the latter was a conjuror, and the animal had been trained to tell fortunes by cards. Some animals have become celebrated through the misfortunes of their owners rather than through their own merits. The sad list of "prison pets" comes into this category; the spiders, the rats, the mice that amused a captive's weary hours. Two sphinxes live in history and legend; the one whose persevering efforts to regain its broken web preached a lesson of hopefulness to Robert the Bruce in his dire need; the other, chronicled by the author of the "A-Sa-Sancorum" as having hidden St. Felix from persecutors by spinning a web across the entrance of the cave where he lay concealed. There is a tradition that at a public once rendered a similar good office to Mahomet when escaping from his enemies.—London Globe.

A new feature in some of the leading schools of New Jersey is playing dail and local newspapers in the highest department for the use of the pupils. The students are required to give an occasional abstract of the news of the day as gleaned from their columns.

There was frost in the upper part of Connecticut on the 25th, and tobacco was greatly damaged.

The town of Westfalls, N. Y., is in a state of excitement over the discovery of oil. Pennsylvania companies will begin operations at once.

Melvin Lindsey and Nathan Rivers, two negroes from Ithaca county, were arrested at Chattanooga, Tenn., on the 25th, on the charge of having tried to commit a terrible crime last Thursday evening. They went to the house of Mrs. Jane Lacey, and threatened her with instant death if she made any outcry. She refused to submit to their heinous designs. Assistance arrived in time to prevent the crime. The negroes will doubtless be mobbed as the greatest excitement prevails.

All doubts as to the cannibalism reported in the Greely party were set aside yesterday by an examination of the remains of Lieut. Kishlingbury, which had been buried at Rochester, N. Y. When the coffin was opened it was discovered that the flesh had been cut from portions of the body, and every portion that could be eaten had undoubtedly been used for food. What can be said however, when it is remembered that these starving men were beyond the pale of society and had faced starvation and freezing for weary months? The denial of Lieut. Greely that cannibalism had been resorted to falls to pieces before this frightful but mute testimony to the truth of the story that has been so widely published.—Louisville Commercial.

The Bell telephone patent has only eight years more to live, and the moment the patent existing expires the country will be flooded with telephones costing almost nothing. The ordinary Blake transmitter, for instance, an almost indispensable adjunct to every telephone, costs two dollars to manufacture, but one is now shown to New York electricians which does the same work, is no bigger than a thick coat button, and costs, according to its inventors, Park Benjamin, less than two cents to make. Benjamin believes that when the telephone patent expires telephone service will become so cheap that no house will be without a telephone, the cost not exceeding one dollar a year, and the charge for conversation across the continent being but trifling.

The cannibalism of the Greely party serves only to show to what extremities the men were driven. It should not lessen our sympathy or respect for them. If a man stole his companion's food he was stealing that companion's life. Discipline was all important. Under the dreadful surroundings no one can blame Greely for having Henry shot, or for eating him after he was shot.—Louisville Post.
